

VASCULAR PATHWAYS

News for fellows and friends of the vascular surgery residency and fellowship program of the UPMC Division of Vascular Surgery

Welcome to Vascular Pathways, the biannual e-newsletter for the UPMC Division of Vascular Surgery Residency and Fellowship Program. This publication aims to keep program graduates and friends up to date about program news and accomplishments.

Residents and Fellows Graduation 2019

The Division of Vascular Surgery celebrated its two graduating fellows – Drs. Kathryn Fong and Lindsey Haga – and two graduating residents – Drs. Natalie Sridharan and Jason Wagner – on June 21, 2019 at the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Drs. Haga and Sridharan joined the faculty in the UPMC Division of Vascular Surgery in Pittsburgh this August. Dr. Fong will join the faculty at Palmetto Health in Columbia, SC and Dr. Wagner is joining Sarasota Vascular Specialists in Sarasota, FL.

In addition, we honored this year's recipients of the Division's vascular teaching awards. Richard Redlinger, Jr., MD, was also honored with the Henry T. Bahnson Teacher of the Year Award in Vascular Surgery for 2019 and our first year resident, Bowen Xie, MD, was honored with the David L. Steed Teaching Award in Vascular Surgery for 2019.

Congratulations to all!

16th Annual Pittsburgh Vascular Symposium

The 16th Annual Pittsburgh Vascular Symposium was held at the Fairmont Pittsburgh Downtown this past May 30 – June 1, 2019.

This year's program included case presentations, debates, and a multidisciplinary panel of national and international leaders in the treatment of vascular disease. The conference was attended by more than 170 people and featured a wound care session, as well as a session dedicated to Advance Practice Providers. The Pittsburgh Vascular Symposium continues to stand as a benchmark forum for the exchange of innovative ideas in vascular medicine.
